DETAILED ACTION

Election/Restrictions

Restriction is required under 35 U.S.C. 121 and 372.

This application contains the following inventions or groups of inventions which are not so linked as to form a single general inventive concept under PCT Rule 13.1.

In accordance with 37 CFR 1.499, applicant is required, in reply to this action, to elect a single invention to which the claims must be restricted.

Group I, claims 75-116, drawn to a system for measuring blood flow in an organ.

Group II, claims 117-145, drawn to a method of measuring blood flow in an organ.

The inventions listed as Groups I and II do not relate to a single general inventive concept under PCT Rule 13.1 because, under PCT Rule 13.2, they lack the same or corresponding special technical features for the following reasons: The citation of prior art reference US Patent No. 5,642,734 to Ruben et al. in the search report for pct/il06/00075 which describes at least the apparatus of claim 75 and reference US Patent No. 6,016,393 to Hovland et al. in the search report for pct/il04/00395 which also describes at least the apparatus of claim 75 shows that there is clearly a lack of a single unifying novel inventive concept linking the independent claims such that there is a lack of unity of invention. The remaining subject matter of the independent claims of Group I and Group II are related only as a method (Group II) and apparatus for carrying out the method (Group I).

This application contains claims directed to more than one species of the generic invention. These species are deemed to lack unity of invention because they are not so linked as to form a single general inventive concept under PCT Rule 13.1.

The species are as follows:

A1. A method or apparatus comprising pacemaker operable to control a heart rate or wherein a heart rate of the subject is controlled

A2. A method or apparatus comprising a drug administering device or wherein a drug or drugs is/are administered to the subject.

A3. A method or apparatus comprising a cardiac assist device operable to increase cardiac output or wherein the reduction of cardiac expansion is maintained so as to increase cardiac output.

Applicant is required, in reply to this action, to elect a single species to which the claims shall be restricted if no generic claim is finally held to be allowable. The reply must also identify the claims readable on the elected species, including any claims subsequently added. An argument that a claim is allowable or that all claims are generic is considered non-responsive unless accompanied by an election.

Upon the allowance of a generic claim, applicant will be entitled to consideration of claims to additional species which are written in dependent form or otherwise include all the limitations of an allowed generic claim as provided by 37 CFR 1.141. If claims are added after the election, applicant must indicate which are readable upon the elected species. MPEP § 809.02(a).

The claims are deemed to correspond to the species listed above in the following manner:

Species A1: claims 84, 126, 127
Species A2 claims 85, 128
Species A3: claims 86, 87, and 129

The following claim(s) are generic: claims 75, 117, 124.

See above for an explanation of how the cited prior art shows that the species listed above do not relate to a single general inventive concept under PCT Rule 13.1 because, under PCT Rule 13.2, the species lack the same or corresponding special technical features for the following reasons.

This application contains claims directed to more than one species of the generic invention. These species are deemed to lack unity of invention because they are not so linked as to form a single general inventive concept under PCT Rule 13.1.

The species are as follows:

B1. A method wherein the remaining portion of the mixed radiofrequency signal is analogically amplified.

B2. A method wherein the remaining portion of the mixed radiofrequency signal is digitized.

Applicant is required, in reply to this action, to elect a single species to which the claims shall be restricted if no generic claim is finally held to be allowable. The reply must also identify the claims readable on the elected species, including any claims subsequently added. An argument that a claim is allowable or that all claims are generic is considered non-responsive unless accompanied by an election.

Upon the allowance of a generic claim, applicant will be entitled to consideration of claims to additional species which are written in dependent form or otherwise include all the limitations of an allowed generic claim as provided by 37 CFR 1.141. If claims are added after the election, applicant must indicate which are readable upon the elected species. MPEP § 809.02(a).

The claims are deemed to correspond to the species listed above in the following manner:

Species B1: claim 120
Species B2: claim 121

The following claim(s) are generic: claim 117.

See above for an explanation of how the cited prior art shows that the species listed above do not relate to a single general inventive concept under PCT Rule 13.1 because, under PCT Rule 13.2, the species lack the same or corresponding special technical features for the following reasons.

Applicant is advised that the reply to this requirement to be complete must include (i) an election of a species or invention to be examined even though the requirement may be traversed (37 CFR 1.143) and (ii) identification of the claims encompassing the elected invention.

The election of an invention or species may be made with or without traverse. To preserve a right to petition, the election must be made with traverse. If the reply does not distinctly and specifically point out supposed errors in the restriction requirement, the election shall be treated as an election without traverse.

Applicant is reminded that upon the cancellation of claims to a non-elected invention, the inventorship must be amended in compliance with 37 CFR 1.48(b) if one or more of the currently named inventors is no longer an inventor of at least one claim remaining in the application. Any amendment of inventorship must be accompanied by a request under 37 CFR 1.48(b) and by the fee required under 37 CFR 1.17(i).
